I hope you met with that cordial attention from your old acquaintance, you had a right to expect. and that every object you had in contemplation for yourself is in a fair train, for I do not expect from the shortness of the time you have been in England, that you can have accomplished any great important business.

and I also hope you will not spend all your time at Margate while others have been and are still employed for the public good of these colonies.

Sir John Wentworth has by his exertions in promoting the Memorials from the Merchants at Halifax, to Ministers, and a statement of facts to his friends in England on the trade being engrossed by the Americans to the exclusion of the trading interest of these provinces - produced a letter from Lord Camden informing him, that Instructions have been
