

You won^d be more than ever delighted with him. He has already been over half the town, & visited all the people in it.

His footboy attends
him like a shadow,

moves when he moves,

& stops when he stops.

The express waits
only for this letter &

I

I cannot detain him,
— I shall have ~~material~~ to fill another volume immediately, I must suspend all matters
of business. —

Don't grow too
vain — on the repeated compliments I pay
you. All the eloquence of W. Pittain, cou^d. not prevail on me to attempt to sign my name, even to a
paper
