but (when sunk by sickness & in real danger,) I have taken into consideration—what would become of you my dearest, best of wives, & your precious little ones—I have shuddered at the idea of dying, & have turn. a toward. I have been in this situation for three days past, and the melancholy anticipation has increased my distress so as to render it almost insupportable.
I could reconcile myself tolerably well to parting with my other friends altho' I love them sincerely. — but
