

& I shall not hesitate
about sending Murray, with him. There never can be a better opportunity.

8 o'clock P.M.

Thompson, a man has not come with his baggage, & Blowers has sent me word that he goes off at daylight in the morning, I therefore cannot answer any thing that may be in your letter which is in the Postmarteau. Now.

Now? there be any thing which requires a parti-cular answer, I'll send an express, which will probably reach you in two or three days after this.

By the account which Murray gives of the Colt, I think it will be best to send him to Stoumont's or some such place & let him remain the winter.

I
