the chest, and my servant
is to keep the key. -

The Gentlemen will all be kind to me, and I shall be very comfortable.

I wrote you last night
and so I have nothing
more to say - only my love to Pop & Tom, &
little Peri & Kitty James.

I am

Dear Mama

Your loving & dutiful son.

I relate these little
dialogues almost word
for word as they are spoken and altho' one half the world will laugh at the nonsense & folly of such repetitions - yet you
my beloved wife will receive some pleasure
from them. Parents who feel as we do will naturally experience agreeable sensations at the relation of every circumstance which
