dear little ones. —
however trifling they are in themselves. —

Miss Kitty Taylor (who is one of the most amiable girls in the whole world, & is vastly fond of Murray) has been for an hour almost, endeavouring to prevail on Murray to kiss her, which he has refused, stoddily, at last under a pretence of whispering to him she has given him a very loud smack.

hang it say Murray
" 'Tis not so bad as I thought " it was, now you may
" kiss me as much as you
" have a mind to."

The whole company
are now in a roar laughing at him. — Marston among the rest, whose fondness for Murray has made him dearer to me than ever.
— Murray is with him half the day & he is constantly collecting nuts, apples &c.
for him.
