

pressed on the ends of the several tails and sewed for keys. He exhibited this machine by the name of The new Patent Cat Organ - and after a little practice, could play every note from the base muwau of a ram cat of six years, to the shrill pebble muw of a kitten of an many days & the flats and sharps were easily played by a different pressure of the keys. The exact similarity of the sound, drew vast numbers to hear him play - it was acknowledged to show a great genius & to be peculiarly calculated for slow music.

He ~~continued~~ carried on the deception, till some curious searches after truth rashly uncovering the machine, to examine the particular construction
