solicitation, and I feel secure of every benevolent exertion in your power.
To be with you, and assist you, is the object of my ambition, and I sincerely hope that somehow or other you may be able to effect it.

In case you fail in your application for the paymaster ship, I should suppose that "Comptroller of Accounts for the province" would be a very good title in it's stead. I mention it because I don't know whether the idea ever struck you, but I think it would be as useful an office as any that could be made. — Apropos — (to return to our dear self again) was it the idea of the Board that Mr. Armstrong should still be continued as clerk, or did they only mean to make him a
