"end to their idle hopes at once, by reading from a paper in his pocket, a resolution which the Assembly of Virginia had come to, so late as on the 17th of December last."

Having read the resolution, his Lordship demanded "what ministers had to fay now. " for this boafted recommendation for which "they had stipulated with Congress? Could " they fay, that the unhappy men who had " fought and bled for this country, who had " given up their all, and (a pang the more " grievous to minds of feeling) the all of their " little families; could ministers fay, that these " men who had faid and done and fuffered all " that was in the power of human nature for " our cause, ought not to have had a better " fecurity than the prefent, from fcorn, info-" lence, and ruin? A peace founded on fuch " a SACRIFICE as this, must be accurfed in the " fight of God and man."

Lord Loughborough said, "That the 5th ar"tiele of the treaty has excited a general and
"just indignation. For what purpose could
"it have been inserted? Those whom it pre"tends to savour receive no benefit from it;
"for what is the purport of a recommenda"tion? but to those the most entitled to our
"regard, the brave and unbappy men who "have

" have not only given up their property, but " exposed their lives in our cause, the distinc-" tion admitted to their prejudice is cruel and " injurious indeed. In ancient or in modern " bistory there cannot be found an instance of " fo shameful a desertion of men who had " facrificed all to their duty, and to their re-" liance upon our FAITH. There is even an " borrible refinement in the cruelty of the ar-" ticles: they are told that one year is allowed " them to solicit from the lenity of their per-" fecutors that mercy which their friends ne-" gletted to fecure; to beg their bread of those " by whom they have been stripped of their all; to kiss the bands that have been dipt in " the blood of their parents, and to obtain, if " they can, leave to repurchase what they have " no money to pay for."

"what in these provisional articles still to be considered, which I have never resected on without feelings as pungent as any which the warmest admirers of the virtues of the Loyalists can possibly have experienced; I mean the unhappy necessity of our affairs, which induced the extremity of submitting the fate of the property of these brave and worthy men to the discretion of their entermies. I have but one answer to give the House;
